SALT LAKE DEMOCRATS OF UTAH AFTER OFFICE

Salt Lake, April 5.—Many questions of importance will come before the state Democratic committee when it meets this afternoon. Among them is the consideration of a flood of applications from office seekers. It is probable, too, that a Democratic newspaper for Salt Lake will be discussed at considerable length. Although word was received a few days ago that W. R. Wallace could be home from Washington today, it is not considered probable that he will arrive for the meeting.

The question of the "right man" to succeed each of the present Republican incumbents in the various federal offices in the state is a delicate one, and it is considered probable that the applications will be turned over to a subcommittee of the state committee, the subcommittee to make its recommendations to the state body at a later date.

Judge S. R. Thurman, chairman of the state committee, said last night that he would favor such a plan, as he believed that the sifting process was too complicated and lengthy to be handled by the whole committee.

At present the keenest competition seems to exist for the office of United States marshal to succeed James H. Anderson, the incumbent. Eleven avowed candidates are now in the field. They are Aquila Nebeker, Rich county; R. R. Tanner, Beaver county; L. R. Martineau, Salt Lake county; Willard Giles, Utah county; Nathan Farr, Salt Lake county; J. Edwards, Sanpete county; Samuel Dowse, Salt Lake county; John F. Howell, Salt Lake county; L. E. Abbott, Davis county; Jed Mercer, Utah county; and Joseph Kimball, Salt Lake county.

Four candidates have been announced for the office of district attorney to succeed Hiram E. Booth. All of them are said to have strong following. They are Frank B. Stephens, A. J. Weber, W. W. Ray and Ray Van Cott. T. D. Johnson has also been mentioned as a possible candidate, although he has not announced the fact.

Only two candidates, so far as is known, remain in the field for the postmastership. They are Noble Warren, present city recorder, and David C. Dunbar, a prominent member of the party in the state.

A number of applications for the office of surveyor general of Utah will also confront the state leaders. The leading aspirants at present seem to be Samuel L. Page of Piute county, member of the state legislature for three terms, and I. C. Thoreson, W. C. Jennings is also a candidate and it is suggested that there may be one or two dark horses.

County Chairman T. F. Thomas and Brigham T. Pyper seem to be the only two candidates left for the office of collector of the port for Salt Lake City.

Douglas Swan is the only candidate prominently mentioned for the office of collector of internal revenue. There is a strong movement among the Democrats of Montana to get this position for a candidate from that state, and it is not considered improbable that President Wilson will make the change when the appointment is made.

John Clark, secretary of the state committee, is the only avowed candidate for the office of United States assayer to succeed J. U. Eldredge Jr. It is the opinion of some of the members of the state committee that Clark, who is at present secretary of the committee, is entitled to some thing better owing to the fact that it is not improbable that the local office may soon be discontinued.

SAYS PACKAGES ARE TOO SMALL
Salt Lake, April 4.—An attempt will in all probability be made by State Food and Dairy Commissioner Hansen and City Sealer of Weights and Measures Farr to prevent the sale in this city of butter packages containing only fifteen ounces. Practically all of the butter manufacturers are putting up butter in fifteen-ounce packages, which, Mr. Farr says, are being sold for pound packages—or, in other words, for sixteen ounces. Under the state law the manufacturers have the right to put up the fifteen-ounce package, when it is thus labeled, and they cannot be reached, but it is the belief of Mr. Farr that the grocer who sells the package for a pound can be reached by the long arm of the law and he proposes to reach him.

Mr. Farr estimates that the people of the city are being robbed of $250 a day by the purchase of short-weight butter. Mr. Farr adds that when housewives and other purchasers go into a grocery store and order a pound of butter they are given the fifteen-ounce package for a pound and are thereby cheated out of one ounce.

J. M. Smith of the United Grocery company and F. J. Lucas of the Lucas company expressed the opinion yesterday that the sale of fifteen-ounce packages of butter for a pound should not be allowed.

Mr. Smith said it was his desire to sell customers sixteen ounces of butter when they buy a pound, and if wholesalers do not comply with the law and put sixteen ounces in a pound package he will either be compelled to have butter shipped to him from foreign points or will stop the sale of butter altogether.

Mr. Lucas heartily approved of selling a full sixteen-ounce pound of butter.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is inflamed the hearing is lost. The inflammation can be taken out and the hearing restored. The only way to do this is by the use of the "Cure for Deafness," which is a simple, safe, and effective remedy. It is sold by Dr. J. C. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

butter, and said that if retailers persist in selling short pounds someone should be made an example of. He says there is no more reason for selling fifteen ounces of butter for a pound than in giving eleven eggs to a customer who orders a dozen.

D. C. JACKLING IS GUEST AT BANQUET

Salt Lake, April 5.—D. C. Jackling, vice president and general manager of the Utah Copper company, was the guest of a number of close personal friends at an elaborate banquet in the gold room at the Alta club last evening. Mr. Jackling will leave today for the east and will be absent for several weeks upon business connected with the Utah Copper and other companies in which he is largely interested. The banquet was in the nature of a farewell.

Those present, in addition to the guest of honor, were Governor Spry, D. E. Burley, C. W. Stimpson, Rodney T. Badger, L. R. McCormick, S. A. Whitney, E. G. Janney, R. C. Gemmell, J. Frank Judge, Lawrence Green, H. L. A. Culmer, George O. Bradley, Geo. Morgan, E. M. Allison, Jr., P. B. Sawyer and W. S. McCormick.

RATE HEARING IS ON TODAY

Salt Lake, April 5.—Examiner W. E. Settle, representing the interstate commerce commission, arrived in the city last night and will take up today the case of the Charles A. Smurthwaite Grain company against the Oregon Short Line and other roads operating between here and the southern coast. The complaint of the Smurthwaite company is that the rate on wheat shipped from Utah and Idaho common points is 2 cents a hundred higher to Galveston, Tex., than it is to New Orleans, despite the fact that the New Orleans haul is the longer. The companies involved will lead water competition to New Orleans. Among those who arrived yesterday to defend the action are John T. Howe, assistant general freight agent of the Frisco and Brasos Valley railway; George Williams, assistant general freight agent of the Colorado & Southern railway and A. S. Brooks, attorney for the Colorado & Southern and the Fort Worth & Denver railway.

WOOLGROWERS CONVENTION

Salt Lake, April 5.—Approximately one-third of the total wool clip of Utah is pledged for consignment to the National Wool Warehouse & Storage company according to statements made yesterday at a meeting of woolgrowers of the state held at the Hotel Utah. The additional claim was advanced that within the next ninety days the amount will be increased to include fully 75 per cent of the total clip. The uncertainty surrounding the future of the woolgrowers industry has caused buyers to practically retire from the market and, according to speakers at yesterday's meeting, the woolgrower must hold his product until conditions have settled or sacrifice his earnings of the year.

About 200 woolgrowers were present at the meeting when it was called to order at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by C. B. Stewart, secretary of the Utah Woolgrowers association. A number of wool buyers also were in attendance and were interested auditors during the proceedings.

Discussion of the tariff situation took up a considerable portion of the time of the meeting. Following the close of the session, a number of those present presented their applications for membership in the warehouse company.

"CHIC" VARIAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

Salt Lake, April 5.—Charles Ernest Varian, better known to his friends as "Chic" Varian, 35 years of age, a veteran of the Spanish-American war and son of C. S. Varian, the well known attorney, died at the home of his father, 235 Sixth East street, yesterday morning at 1 o'clock. Death resulted from a disorder of the organs of indigestion.

Mr. Varian was born in Reno, Nev., in 1877. He served in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war as gunner corporal of the first section of Utah battery A, and made a record for expert marksmanship. His frank and likable character made him a great favorite with officers and privates, even as it has in his circle of acquaintances as a civilian. Toward the last of his service Mr. Varian's health failed and he was finally sent home. For a time he improved, but has suffered several relapses from renewed attacks of a digestive disorder. He became critically ill about three weeks ago and grew steadily worse until the end.

During recent years Mr. Varian had been interested in mining in Utah and Nevada. He is unmarried and is survived by his parents and two brothers. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

JURY CONVICTS HILL OF MIDVALE MURDER

Salt Lake, April 5.—Recommending life imprisonment, the jury in the case of J. A. Hill, charged with the murder of Marshal Frank A. Colclough, returned a verdict of guilty as charged in the district court yesterday morning.

The verdict was read aloud by the foreman at exactly 11:30 o'clock. Hill did not so much as blink as his fate was made known to him. His attorneys, far more moved than he, were rebuffed when they offered sympathy.

Motion for a new trial was made at once, and the court set Saturday morning, April 11, as the day for arguments.

The jury had deliberated from 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. At 9 o'clock yesterday morning the jury-men filed into the courtroom and asked for further instructions. They wished to know whether the court had any legal right to alter in any way the verdict they might render. Upon being advised by Judge E. C. Lounsbury that the fate of the defendant rested solely in their hands, they departed to the jury rooms and resumed the debate.

It was learned yesterday afternoon that on the first day the verdict of guilty was reached, but the jurors could not agree as to whether a rec-

The Tragic Fate of the Scott South Polar Expedition is practically the last chapter to Polar Exploration. The desire to be first to reach the Poles has whetted the ambition of intrepid and heroic men for years. Both North and South Poles having been discovered there will never be the human interest in expeditions that follow that there has been in expeditions of the past. Realizing, therefore, that there would be a big demand among our readers for a complete, reliable and vivid History of Arctic and Antarctic Explorations, we made a special arrangement with the publishers whereby we can furnish to our readers, on the exceptional conditions named below.

The Story of the Polar Conquest

Gives the Complete History of Arctic and Antarctic Exploration from the days of the Vikings to the last successful, though disastrous, expedition to the South Pole by Lieutenant Scott. It also tells commendation of mercy could be made. One juror is said to have held out for capital punishment for many hours. It was 11:20 o'clock when word reached the court that the jury was ready with its verdict. The defendant was summoned from the county jail. He entered handcuffed. The jury was already in the box and as Hill strode forward to his seat he shot a steady, inquiring glance across the dozen set and solemn faces of his judges. His face was pallid, but he manifested no other realization that his life had reached its crisis. From the faces of the jurors it was evident that the verdict was against Hill. Hill is convicted of being one of three highwaymen who held up a Vienna saloon in Midvale last August and killed the night marshal when he dared to resist. "Jack" Callahan, said to be another of the trio, will come to trial next Monday. Charles Gammatt, the third highwayman, was killed by Colclough.

EXAMINES REVOLVER: WOUNDED IN CHEST
Salt Lake, April 5.—James Oscar Wilson, who was reported to have been shot in a west side saloon shortly before 11 o'clock Thursday night, was found to be very much alive yesterday, suffering from a superficial wound on the right side of his chest which he said had been inflicted by the accidental discharge of a revolver. Wilson explained to Detectives Lyon and Gillespie that he had been examining the pistol in his room at the Sidney rooming house, 242 West First South street, when the weapon went off unexpectedly. He said that his room mate, Albert Burch, became so excited that he rushed out and telephoned a confused report of the shooting to Daniel Wilson, brother of the wounded man. The brother notified the police and a search was instituted. Wilson declared yesterday that he had been in his room all the time and that the wound he had suffered was only slight, including a powder burn.

SWAT IN TIME SAVES BILLIONS
Salt Lake, April 4.—Believing that a swat in time saves about nine billion later on, the city board of health already has begun its annual campaign against the pestiferous house fly. Thousands of circulars describing the fly as an enemy of mankind and urging his immediate demise have been printed and are being distributed about the city by the health inspectors as they go about their work.

Last year Dr. Samuel G. Paul, health commissioner, advocated the establishment by the city of a regular fly market, where the intrepid hunters of the insect could bring their trophies and receive so much a pound or quart for the carcasses. He may revive the idea and ask the city commission to appropriate a comparatively small amount for this purpose.

The latest circular issued by the board of health on the subjects presents the case against the fly in novel fashion. It advises that it is cheaper to buy screens and fly swatters than to pay the doctor and the undertaker.

PRINCE MINE TODAY IS IN GOOD SHAPE
Owing to the peculiar and frequently unfavorable factors that go to determine the market range of a mining issue, it more often happens that disappointment of shareholders is due more to the market action than to actual mine conditions. This is essentially true in the case of the Prince Consolidated of Ploche, a proposition with a very stormy market career, regardless of the fact that to those knowing the property from surface to sump the mine has met expectations splendidly.

The Prince company at the present is producing from eight to twelve tons of ore a day, averaging about 350 tons daily, and when the items that are included within the mining cost are considered these costs are neither excessive nor disappointing. Everything is charged against mining by the management from the bottom to the top, even including the Prince railroad operations.

From a mining standpoint, the Prince is doing a splendid piece of work. It must be remembered that the only shaft available is a single compartment affair, equipped with a one and a half ton skip and a fifty-horsepower hoisting engine. The management is breaking per machine anywhere from 150 to 225 tons of ore per shift, and despite the larger slopes naturally an incident to the extraction of ores on such a whole-sale basis, no timber is used except that in the chute gates.

One knowing the Prince well said on Friday that the only reason any ore has for being disappointed was from the market alone, and that those who had purchased the stock for an investment have the satisfaction of knowing that the mine is in the best shape of its career today.

"Reform should be conducted in a scientific way," said the economist. "Quite true," replied Professor Highbrow. "The only trouble with scientific reform is that by the time you get through with a diagnosis it's liable to be too late for a remedy."—Washington Star.
